Who Are We?

Newcomers to Cornwall might well ask: Who are the people who make up the town? Where do they come from? And (the big question), do “old-timers” run the town?

To begin with, the answer to the last question is, of course, no. Cornwall is no longer led by an insider group from old families such as the three “old Romans” described by Lewis Gannett in his book Cream Hill.

Who are those old families, or the oldest of the old families?

Cornwall has always been characterized by people moving out and others moving in. Old names disappear even though descendants with other surnames remain. The surnames of nearly all the 18th-century settlers were gone by 1900, except for the few families who today are still on their land—the Hurlburts (from 1748), the Scovilles (1754), the Golds (1755), the Harts (1764), the Calhouns (1792), and the Clarks (1794).

When was it that people born in Cornwall ceased to predominate in town government and in the town’s commercial business?

The changeover was a long time in the making. To some extent it matched the decline in agricultural employment and therefore in the population. For a time, in the 19th century, Cornwall had light industry that brought in new workers, some foreign-born (mostly Irish and German). West Cornwall had three scissors factories, and Cornwall Bridge had an iron furnace; at the same time, more and more farms were put up for sale. Between 1850 and 1920 the population fell by 60 percent. Even today our full-time residents number fewer than they did 200 years ago.

The town began getting summer residents, mostly boarders, in the latter part of the 19th century. Many more came in the 1920s and 30s, buying up land and old farmhouses. That influx continues.

The Grand Lists reflect those changes. In comparing the Grand List at the turn of the century with that of 1990, one finds that only 20 family names appear in both lists. Furthermore, even as early as 1900, 25 percent of town landowners were non-residents. In 1950 that figure was 28 percent. By 1990 it was nearly 40 percent. From 1950 to 1975, 175 landowners’ surnames (30 percent) disappeared from the Grand List, and 375 new ones were added. The biggest non-resident property owner is the State of Connecticut, which controls more than 20 percent of Cornwall.

By the late 40s, native-born residents were outnumbered by others who wanted “a place in the country.” Those others were, and are, not all “city people.” Although more than half of the part-timers claim New York as home, nearly 40 percent are from other towns in Connecticut, and about five percent are from other states. However, in time, many of those vacation homes will become permanent residences, mostly for retirees. Indeed, of current residents, about 10 percent (over 100) were once part-timers, and about 30 of those are returning sons and daughters of one-time residents. Those figures will no doubt increase in the coming years. Young people who grew up in Cornwall find that it is a good place to raise a family—a belief shared by other...

(continued on page 2)
young families moving to Cornwall.

So who now runs the town?
The answer to that is—we all do.

Of the slightly more than 100 names listed in the Town Report as serving on town boards and commissions, about half have come to town in the last 50 years, and about 20 percent of the names are of people who were once part-timers. Although the Fire Department is not listed in the Report, it has on its roster the names of 55 men and women.

More than half of those stalwarts have come to Cornwall since 1950. As one might expect, retirees are well represented in all such organizations.

Yes, Calhouns, Golds, Harts, Hurlburts, and Scovilles still appear on those lists; and, although the Clark name no longer appears, centenarian Harriet Clark remains an unofficial town resource—and treasure.

So, to conclude our profile, we can say that only a minority of us were actually born in the area, that fewer than five percent of us can trace our Cornwall roots back beyond 1900, and that Cornwall continues to be a changing place even as it cherishes its traditions. However, none of that can stop any of us from claiming, with considerable pride, that we are all Cornwallians.

—Michael Gannett and Ken Kesikin

Honors for Our CEO

C.O.S.T., the statewide Council of Small Towns, decided this year to honor a small town CEO annually with a special award. The first recipient was Cornwall’s First Selectman Gordon Ridgway. The citation reads in part: “Gordon is an outstanding and dedicated small town leader, who possesses a unique grass-roots style of leadership. This past legislative session, Gordon took it upon himself to fight for mandate reform and 911 funding, and to serve as a volunteer C.O.S.T. [state] budget watchdog for our towns. Gordon’s hands-on style illustrates that a small town official can make a difference!”

—Doc Simont

Changes for Cornwall Plains

The Planning and Zoning Commission will continue to discuss and explain policies that it is revising to cover the possible change of use for the Marvelwood School and Rumsey buildings in Cornwall Plains. There will be a public hearing on P&Z’s proposed Town Plan amendment, and a draft regulation based on the newly recommended plan will also be given a public hearing. The application procedure and the types of conditions and requirements will be defined and possible categories of use will be mentioned. Since this village is the home of our local government and library and the town green, all the Cornwalls have a concern about Cornwall Plains’ future. P&Z welcomes comment in the coming weeks and at the hearing to be held at 8 P.M. on August 14 at the Town Hall.

—Ginny Potter

It’s A Cruel World Out Here

One recent sunny day, coming out on the porch, I saw from the corner of my eye a large brown bath towel hurtling soundlessly through the air. It landed on an un blossomed bed of lilies not three feet from me; but when I looked back to see who had thrown it, there was no one there. Checking out the towel more closely I caught sight of a round, implacable eye staring at me. We watched each other, motionless; then the towel-with-eye gathered itself together and lumbered off; low flying into the air with a wriggling chipmunk in its talons.

I’ll never know what the towel was, flying directly away from me as it did. An owl in somnambulist? An outsized hawk? All I can say for sure about this episode is that if I ever wanted to be a chipmunk, I don’t any more.

—Scoville D. Soulé

Library’s 125th Birthday Bash

Did you ever give a 125th birthday party and nobody came? That’s what the Friends of the Cornwall Library were fearing on July 15 as the eggs fried on the pavement and records were broken for heat and humidity.

The village simmered in the afternoon sun but, even so, more than 200 supporters of the Library celebrated at a (meritoriously tented) reception, hosted by Anne and Paul Baren, at the Library. The lemonade was soaked up in less than 30 minutes, followed by other drinkables and all the food.

The reception followed a program of readings at UCC by Sue Fox, Bob Terrall, Phyllis Nauts, and Tom Walker. Representative Andrew Roraback presented a proclamation from the Connecticut General Assembly hailing the anniversary. The program concluded with the Colsfoot Chorus singing two Stephen Foster songs popular when the Library was first opened in 1869.

A parade of children, carrying cutouts of their favorite storybook characters, swept through the church and led everyone to the Library for the reception and exhibits about the Library’s history. The parade organizer was Danielle Mailer.

Funds raised for the event will allow the Library trustees to check off two or three items from their wish list.

—Lisa Lansing

Good-bye to A Friend

Joseph Lincoln Peschko, Jr.

Congratulations
Alex Prud’homme & Sarah Buffum
Russell Murdock & Wendy Kent
David E. Harmon & Mary Ellen Diskavich

Land Transfers

Richard A. Furniss, Jr., to Kenneth O’Hara, house and 7.4 acres at 90 Cornwall Hollow Road for $144,000.

Kathleen McGusty Agate to C. Rinker and Amelia D. Buck, house and 15.9 acres at 56 Essex Hill Road for $330,000.

A Town Well Painted

Fortunately for area artists, this year’s Paint the Town to benefit the Cornwall Child Center allowed a 30-day period of grace before the July 15 exhibition and silent auction.

Cornwall was cooking in the 90s on deadline day, which might otherwise have yielded only underwater river and lake scenes if—as in other years—the artists had had to do their paintings on the day of the auction. But the Covered Bridge again won easily as most popular subject. Watercolor was the medium of choice. Drawings and paintings ranged in expression from the phosphorescent shimmer of midsummer night (Michael Gellatly) to the scalding burn of high noon (Larry Pool).

Local artists contributed 40 paintings and the silent auction of their work yielded $2,800, of which more than 40 percent went to the Child Center. There was also a live auction, held on the Green on Lower River Road in West Cornwall, at which an etching by Robert Parker was knocked down for $600. Proceeds of this sale went to the West Cornwall Merchants Association, which sponsors this yearly event, to help cover expenses of the daylong jazz festival that was part of this year’s Paint the Town celebration.

—Brigitte Haef

New CCS Gym?

At a meeting on July 11, attended by about 20 people, Board of Education member David Samson urged Cornwallians to recognize the need for a larger gymnasium at the Cornwall Consolidated School. Samson, who is also a member of the school’s PTA, emphasized that “we are not here to cause any conflict with the present Marvelwood issue,” but merely to convince people of the need to include a larger gym in the town’s long-range planning.

The present gym’s dimensions are 58 x 36.2 feet, which is about one-fourth the size of a standard basketball court. As well as presenting a safety hazard to children who are running fast in its confined space, CCS parent Ben Gray pointed out, the gym is so small that parents who come to see their children in plays and ceremonies can’t all fit into the room. Finding space for such a larger gym, which would take up most of the present parking lot, and the enormous expense—estimated by the Cornwall Association’s president Will Calhoun at nearly a million dol-ars—are among the problems that need to be confronted in the town’s future planning.
Samson urged.

The Girls of Summer
Pulling an old lending card from a copy of The Puritan Twins in the Library last weekend brought me face to face with summer, 1951.
Sally Foote and Libby MacLeod had signed the first two places on the card.
They were my two best friends in the village when I was nine, back when Emily Marsh still ran the Library and dogs slept on the Post Office porch by the Town Hall. When it was really hot, we sat on the porch steps with the dogs, looked at our books, and waited for something to happen. If we were lucky Dr.
Brad Walker might erupt from his driveway in his huge black car and roar off to the hospital in Torrington.
But usually we were on the move. We swam in the farm brook behind Calhoun’s barn (the water was a lovely yellow-brown).
We walked up past the Cathedral Pines and down a secret way to the Forester’s Pool.
Sally and I loved a mucky little pond we found behind Ben Gray’s house because it
was full of frogs and smells.
We dug for treasure, we dug in the greenscummed pond, we built unsafe tree houses
found behind Ben Gray’s house because it
was full of frogs and smells.
And kept the shuttle on its pad.

P.S. Just don’t let them burn
all the way down!

MIGHTY BIRDS
“Flickers Destroy Protective Coat of Shuttle’s Rocket Booster. Flight Delayed for at Least Eight Days”—The New York Times,

Flickers out of liquor
Seek rocket fuel for booze;
Peck quick and ever quicker
To make the fuel tank ooze.

They rip the soft gray coating
Of a shuttle’s readied booster
With beaks of gleeful gloating
That NASA’s staff aren’t use-ta.

When planners of this mission
Found bird damage was so bad,
They canceled flight permission
And kept the shuttle on its pad.

(Perhaps these birds, within their rights,
Curtailing excess space-bound flights,
Can save tax dollars for our pockets
Instead of funding flames for rockets.)

—Larry Pool
Affordable Progress
Another member of the Cornwall Housing Corporation’s “Parcel Program” has been given the go-ahead from P&Z to build her home. Laurie Doss will build on her lot at the south end of Valley Road, a gift from the Calhoun family to the Corporation.
Sally O’Shaughnessy will be moving into her Pierce Lane home this summer. Debra Tyler and Michael DeGreenie have already had their housewarmings. Two more sites on Pierce Lane await construction.

—Ken Keskinen

Big Day for Rummage
Cornwall’s annual rummage sale, held on July 22, was bigger and better than ever this year, requiring a second tent to display all the goodies. Entry tickets Nos. 1 and 2 were held by Bob and Mary Jane Coons of Harwinton, who captured the first place by arriving at the Parish House at 6:45 A.M. They have been the first-comers for several years now. Cilla Mauro and Thalia Scoville ably led the 80-plus volunteers who worked on the sale, which took in a whopping $13,087.16 for UCC Woman’s Society causes.

—Barbara Klaw

Sister Act at Library
The Cornwall Library is host right now to an excellent collection of sculptures, paintings, and photographs. Alice Gross Fish (sculptor) and Irene Gross Berzon (painter and photographer) are exhibiting examples of their award-winning works for the next few weeks.
Alice has produced some exceptional sculptures, working mostly with the human figure. Take special note of the graceful “A Minor Adjustment,” displayed in the children’s room.
Irene’s offerings include some striking landscapes, such as “Spring” and “Along the Housatonic.” She shows a sense of humor in her photographs, especially in “Musical—Cornwall Landfill.”

—Alfred Brahdenberg

Thank You
For your generous response to last month’s letter. So far we’ve received checks and warm comments from 102 readers. If you’ve been meaning to send a contribution but haven’t yet done so, let this be a reminder.

Events & Announcements
School Days, School Days: CCS will open for the 1995-96 school year on Tuesday, September 5. The first day will be a full session from 8:40 A.M. to 2:55 P.M. Kindergarten classes will be held in the morning from 8:40 to 11:15 and in the afternoon from 12:20 to 2:55. Letters will be mailed to all families in Cornwall giving pertinent opening-day information including transportation routes and a school calendar for the year.
Beginning Monday, August 21, the school office will be open from 9 A.M. to 1 P.M. for the convenience of parents who have questions and for the registration of new pupils. Kindergarten orientation and bus ride will take place on Tuesday, August 29, at 10 A.M.

St. Bridget’s 23rd Annual Country Fair will be held August 19, 9 A.M. to 3 P.M., rain or shine. Vendor space is available for $15, with advance payment due by August 11. To reserve a space please call St. Bridget’s rectorcy, 672-6515.

Items needed for the fair are jewelry, tools, toys, food for the bake sale, white elephant items, working appliances, and clothing in good condition.

Children’s Party at the Library: On Friday, August 25, at 10 A.M. there will be fun, entertainment, and refreshments at the Library for all children who have participated in “Reach for the Stars” and story hours with Judy Gafney.

The Rose Algrant Art Show: The annual Friends of Rose Algrant Art Show will take place August 11-13 at the Marvelwood School student lounge and dining hall. The opening will be Friday, August 11, from 4 to 8 P.M. Saturday and Sunday hours will be 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. The profits will be donated to the Cornwall Library Association in honor of its 125th anniversary. A local tradition for over 30 years, the show will exhibit work of Cornwall painters, sculptors, photographers, and craftspersons, and will occupy two floors of one of the Marvelwood buildings being considered for town use.

Thank You
For your generous response to last month’s letter. So far we’ve received checks and warm comments from 102 readers. If you’ve been meaning to send a contribution but haven’t yet done so, let this be a reminder.

Yes, I want the Chronicle to continue.
Here is my tax-deductible contribution of $__________.

Name ____________________________
Address __________________________
City/State/Zip ______________________

$10 will get the Chronicle mailed out of town.

CORNWALL CHRONICLE
143 CREAM HILL ROAD, WEST CORNWALL, CT 06796

AUGUST 1995

Author April Stevens will read selections from her first novel, Angel, Angel, at the Cornwall Library on Thursday, August 17, at 8 P.M. and discuss the process of writing. The book was published by Viking in February, 1995, and received excellent reviews in The New York Times and The Washington Post. April, who lives in both Cornwall and New York, does much of her writing at her home on Valley Road. Her talk is sponsored by the Friends of the Cornwall Library. Everyone invited.

Fall Registration for the Cornwall Child Center will be September 1, 10 A.M. to noon, at the Center. For information during the summer, call director Pam Brehm (824-1289).

Coltsfoot Concert: The fourth annual Coltsfoot Chorus Concert will take place on Sunday, August 27, at 5:30 P.M. at the Rumsey gym. Supper afterwards at 6:30 P.M. — bring your own picnic. Program includes blues, madrigals, Bartok, spirituals, golden oldies, etc. Singers are Beth Samuels, John LaPorta, Tim and Marie Prentice, Susan Fox, Nora Horan, Mark Brooks, Julia Scott, Lisa Lansing, Greg Zabielski, and Jim Whiteside.

Susan B. Anthony Open House: There will be information, refreshments, and entertainment for grown-ups and kids at the Susan B. Anthony Project open house on Wednesday, August 23, from 6 to 8 P.M. The event will take place at Cadwell’s Corner and at the Susan B. Anthony office over the West Cornwall Post Office. Admission is free. Call Hendon Chubb at 672-6607 or the Project office at 672-3291 if you’d like to help with the preparations. The Susan B. Anthony Project works to promote the independence of women and the safety of all victims of domestic abuse and sexual assault.

CORNWALL CHRONICLE
ILLUSTRATIONS Tim Prentice
plus two by letter writers

AUGUST EDITORS
Ella Clark Doc Simont
SEPTEMBER EDITORS
Ella Clark Phyllis & Charles Osborne

DIRECTORS:
Tom Bevans PRESIDENT
Spencer Klaw VICE PRESIDENT AND PUBLISHER
Edward Ferrman SECRETARY • Robert Bors TREASURER
Hendon Chubb Barbara Dakin • Auling Ferrman
Robert Klaw • Charles Osborne

CORNWALL RESIDENT