School Expansion Wins

Although the margin of victory isn’t as impressive as a referendum run by Saddam Hussein, the result of the October 19 school building vote is pretty decisive by Cornwall standards. Of 623 votes cast, 447 voted to support the school building project, with 176 against. The better than two-to-one margin was the consensus town leaders were seeking to confidently move forward with renovating and expanding the school.

This last vote winds up a string of referendums which allowed taxpayers to weigh in every step of the way. The first project brought to a vote was a comprehensive plan that included relocating Cream Hill Road. Although the plan passed by a narrow margin, concerns about impending tax increases and the scope of the expansion caused the project to be halted. A year of study ensued, and taxpayers were given opportunities to vote on the formation of another building committee. Although the vote was close, a new building committee was formed, and the scope of the expansion culminated in the plan (and price) favored by voters by the widest margin. The next step is the formation of, yes, another building committee to oversee the actual design and construction of the project. This committee will spend the winter refining and making the final decisions on the design components. The project will then go out to bid, and construction is planned to begin late next spring.

VOTE!

Election Day is Tuesday, November 5. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Town Hall.

In this “off year” there are no municipal elections, so our Selectmen and other town officials continue to serve into the second year of their terms. (Actually, we will vote for local Judge of Probate and for Registrars of Voters, but no contests are involved.)

However, there are important state and national elections. The ballot will offer the following candidates: Governor and Lt. Governor—Rowland and Rell (R) vs. Curry and Blumenthal (D); Congressional Representative—Johnson (R) vs. Maloney (D); State Senator—Roraback (R) vs. Marconi (D); State Representative—Morris (R) vs. Willis (D); Secretary of the State—San Angelo (R) vs. Bysiewicz (D); Treasurer—Garber (R) vs. Nappier (D); Comptroller—Mullins (R) vs. Wyman (D); Attorney General—Dean (R) vs. Blumenthal (D).

There are also third and fourth party candidates for several offices.

The election for our Congressional Representative is unusual: because of mandated redistricting, one incumbent is running against another.

So there’s good reason to get to the polls this year.

CVFD Awarded Grants

The Cornwall Volunteer Fire Department has received grants totaling $76,363 from the State of Connecticut and the federal government. The grants are to be used for the purchase of new state-of-the-art firefighting equipment which will replace equipment that is badly worn and nearing the end of its life.

The federal grant of $73,888, awarded by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, will reimburse the town for 90 percent of the cost of 17 new Self-Contained Breathing Apparatus units and supporting equipment. The grant is one of 2,756 awarded to fire departments across the United States from among more than 19,500 applications.

The State of Connecticut grant of $2,475.

awarded by the Department of Environmental Protection, will reimburse the town for 50 percent of the cost of eight sets of new turnout pants and coats, worn to protect a firefighter from heat and flames.

The SCBA units help firefighters breathe clear air when entering a smoke-filled or other hazardous area. Each unit contains two other important features: a Personal Alert Safety System which sends a warning signal if a firefighter stops moving, and a Voice Projection Unit which amplifies and projects a firefighter’s voice from inside the SCBA mask.

All of this new equipment will enhance the safety and effectiveness of our firefighters. It would have helped our volunteer firefighters at both the Cream Hill Farm and the Richmond House fires earlier this year, where entry into the burning structure was necessary.

The successful grant applications were prepared by CVFD members Charles Gold, Jack Preston, Earle Tyler, and Phill West.

Wood Pile Returns

Now that summer’s dryness has eased, a popular feature of the transfer station—the wood pile—will return. Small amounts of clean (no painted or pressure-treated) wood will again be accepted. But no plywood, please.

In other developments at the transfer station, attendants are collecting old eyeglasses and Campbell soup-can labels for charitable purposes.

Dump masters report that the amount of bulky waste has increased and become more expensive to transfer. Residents are reminded that a payment of $40 per pickup, prorated, is expected at time of tipping. There is a $3 charge for tires (must be under 20 inches diameter), which must be taken off rims.

The garbage compactor caught fire this summer as a result of a “hot load.” Residents are asked not to put flammable or hot materials such as wood ashes in their garbage.

Landscaping continues to improve. There is talk of installing a golf facility on top of Mt. Brean to keep up with other towns. Stay tuned for developments.

New Wheels in Cornwall

You suddenly can’t drive? Or you don’t have a car? And you live in Cornwall? “It’s impossible to live without wheels in this town,” says First Selectman Gordon Ridgway. “Older people in particular—I know from my own experience—have a hard time. That’s why we think this new option, added to our other good resources, will be really useful.”

These “other resources” are the Northwest Connecticut Rural Transit bus out of Torrington (call 800-906-7433) and FISH (Friends In Service Here), our local volunteer driving network (call Joan Adler at 672-6789). But Rural Transit cannot always accommodate someone who needs, say, daily rides to radiation appointments at Charlotte Hungerford or a doctor’s office in Great Barrington. And people are reluctant to use the FISH volunteers. “We have independent people in Cornwall,” says Joan. “Many hesitate to call us.”

The option Gordon is talking about is a brand new flexible program by which Geer Adult Day Center will dispatch buses or a van to Cornwall for medical appointments, shopping, and even “social outings” in other towns, as well as Great Barrington, Winsted, and Torrington. The town’s cost of $2,000 per year was unanimously approved on October 17 by the Board of Finance.

As of November 1, you can call Maureen Chodan at 824-1362 for door-to-door transportation. Geer will also offer, at no additional cost to the town, buses for group outings. Gordon adds, “And when the YMCA at Geer Village is up and running, you’ll be able to get a ride up there to go swimming. We want to help people stay as independent as they can be.”

Zagat, West Cornwall

With the opening of Soupe du Jour in Rail­road Square, West Cornwall now boasts three great places to eat. The new café is owned and run by Sue Kochman and her daughter Sarah Duffy. Sue is already well known around town as New England Caterers, purveyors of great party food.

The building has been painted a pale yellow with a pretty green roof. The interior has been completely redone and furnished with attractive antiques. Yes, it is also an antique store, in that everything inside is for sale. There are nine tables in a light, airy room that comfortably seats about 30 people. The room is also available for receptions and parties.

As the name suggests, the lunch menu consists of eight to ten differ-
Letters to the Chronicle

Cornwall Conservation Trust (CCT) at a discount.

A state grant foots half the bill to keep this land open and enjoyed by all in perpetuity if the CCT can convince 200 people to give $1,000 each (or the equivalent) to keep this land in the raw. Join us at the Hart Farm on Cherry Hill Road from 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, November 30, for a little cider making and for hayrides, weather permitting. Call me at 672-2407 for more information.

THANKS FROM PRIME TIME HOUSE

The Fourth Annual Cornwall House Tour held on October 12 to benefit Prime Time House was a $15,000 success! At last count some 280 people ventured out on that blustery Saturday to do some real “barnstorming.” They look to the muddy, leaf-covered roads of our town to tour a house in a barn, a barn made into a house, a barn-looking library, a building that started out as a new barn and ended up as a house, and two homes that once their existence to barns—were once farms! A wonderful, autumnal-inspired reception held at the Olds’ barn in Cornwall Village completed the day. Cornwall’s community spirit continues to shine in every season.

GETTING ONLINE

In a survey the Web Group of the Cornwall Association conducted last year, we found that many people liked reading agendas and minutes of the town boards on the Website.

Unfortunately, despite our best efforts, we have found it very difficult to post these on a timely basis. To do so requires that a Web Group member appear at the Town Offices on the right day and time, get a disk with the latest minutes on it, then take the disk home or to someone with e-mail capability and send the files to the webmaster for posting. It just doesn’t work out.

SAVING THE LAND

Farmers in our area are under pressure to sell their land for non-agricultural uses. Local efforts to preserve the remaining pieces of working land have received good news this year.

The State Department of Agriculture has recently agreed to purchase the development rights for parts of the Lorch and Hurlburt farms. Both families could have cashed in and gotten more money on the open market. Fortunately, their actions will preserve their farmland.

Now, under a different program, the state has offered matching funding to the Cornwall Conservation Trust (CCT) to acquire most of the Hart farm. I urge residents to aid CCT efforts to preserve this important piece of land for generations to come.

ONLY THE POST OFFICE KNOWS

I was amused at the very specific instructions on addressing envelopes.

It called to mind the time—years ago—when my daughter in Colorado wrote me, addressing the envelope this way:

The Biddy Cornwall Bridge, CT.

I wonder why it reached ME!

KEEPS IT IN THE RAW

American land is being developed at a rate of 365 acres per hour; Connecticut farmland is disappearing by 8,000 acres each year. Small-scale agriculture has been the happy medium between wilderness and loss of land to development.

The first left turn off Cream Hill Road onto Cherry Hill leads you to a vista unrivaled in town and perhaps in the county, with hills of New York State and Massachusetts revealed. The Hart siblings seven have foregone the lure of developers’ coins and hope to sell the land to the Russ and Sharon Sawicki recently acquired the building on the corner of Lower River Road and the Sharon-Goshen Turnpike which houses The Wandering Moose, but this very popular moderately priced eating and meeting place has been operating since March 2001. Breakfast is served every day from 7 to 11:30 a.m.; lunch every day but Sun.

Globalization and Its Effects: Twenty years ago as globalization was just taking off, Cornwall's Peter Hollander produced the Economics Game, a 10-minute UN documentary on the international economy from the point of view of developing countries. Last year Cornwall's Jeremy Brecher produced Global Village or Global Pillage?, a 30-minute documentary on grassroots responses to globalization. The Friends of the Cornwall Library invite you to see the videos and hear the producers at the Cornwall Library on Saturday, November 2 from 4 to 6 P.M. A $5 contribution is suggested.

Art in Cornwall: At the Cornwall Library, Tim Prentice's show of kinetic will continue through November 16. Beginning November 18 and continuing through December 28 will be Don Bracken's exhibit of some of the large and powerful paintings that he made while at a studio on the 97th floor of the World Trade Center.

At the Wish House, the exhibit of jewelry by Elizabeth Kaestner continues through the month of November.

At the Cornwall Arts Collection, there will be an opening on November 9 from 5 to 7 p.m. of a show featuring the wildlife-related works of Scott Zuckerman and Connie Steuerwalt.

Book Sale Sets Record: Despite the continuous and torrential rain on October 12, the Friends of the Cornwall Library raised more than $3,200 for operating expenses. Sales were greatly helped by the fact that the Library was part of the Cornwall House Tour.

Familiar Tunes
You know that feeling when you can't get a tune out of your mind? Last month's performance of The Fantasticks had that effect on us. Which is probably how you readers feel about this space, in which we relentlessly remind you how much we count on your donations to continue publishing. Still, try to remember....

Child Center News: Do you ever need afternoon child care while you go to a doctor, dentist, or important meeting? If your child has been or is currently enrolled in one of the four after-school Arts Club enrichment programs, he/she is eligible to come to the Child Center at 3 p.m. on an as-needed basis during the school year. Please call 672-6989, 48 hours ahead, to make arrangements and to assure there is space available.

Community Thanksgiving Service: This year's Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service will be hosted by the United Church of Christ in Cornwall, Congregational. The service will be held on Wednesday, November 27 at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Laura Westby will offer a meditation and the choirs of the church will lead the gathering in songs of praise. Please plan to attend and bring a non-perishable food item for our local food pantry.

Mme Pompadour at the Library: Christine Pevitt Algrant will talk about her new book Mme de Pom­ padour: Mistress of France at the Cornwall Free Library, Sunday, November 17 at 3 p.m. Wine and cheese will be served, and copies of the book will be available for purchase. Proceeds will go to the Library operating account. For more information call Lisa Simont at 672-2659.

The 5th Annual Cornwall Talent Show will be sponsored by the Friends of the Cornwall Library on Friday, November 29 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the United Church of Christ. Come and enjoy this evening of homegrown, family entertainment featuring some surprising new talent as well as some familiar faces. Tickets are $15 for adults and $6 for kids under 12. Proceeds will benefit the operating expenses of the Cornwall Library. Use the order form on the Chronicle insert for tickets, which will be mailed to you. For information call 672-0233.

A Christmas Fair will be held on Saturday, December 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Parish House. In the Parish House there will be crafts by local artists, evergreen wreaths, decorations, and a room for children to shop for and wrap presents for the family. A soup and sandwich lunch and holiday foods will be available in the Day Room of the church. To reserve wreaths, which must be ordered in advance, call Joan Edler at 672-6789.

Focus on Kids: Cornwall Cub Scouts will be holding a bottle and can drive. Bring your returnables to the Town Green on Saturday, November 23 between 9 and 11 a.m. The boys thank you for your support.

Parents of the Cornwall Child Center will be hosting the Children's Shopping Room at the UCC Christmas Fair. Donations would be very much appreciated. This is a children-only room where they can do their Christmas shopping. All items will be sold for 25 cents. Donations can be left at the Child Center beginning Tuesday, November 12, or call Bethany Thompson at 672-6058.
